

I started to go to the DC bars from 1967 (age 17) to my move to North Carolina in 1973.

Here are some places I used to go to, or know of:

Mac's Pub (upstairs for drinking) (downstairs for dates)

Clydes	The Keg
Mr. Smith's	Childe Harold
Chadwicks,	GW Campus Club (on G St, sawdust on floor, peanuts Natty Bo on tap
Nathans,	Tombs
Crazy Horse,	Brickskellar
The Bayou

Bars around 14 Street (Franklin Square Area) : Safest area in town:

Shore Patrol/MPs always there, sodium vapor lights, tons of people

Speakeasy (had a girl on a swing that came out of a window outside the building)

Casino Royale	Blue Mirror
This is It,	Bennys Rebel Room
Butterfly Club	Rocket Room (near the Greyhound Bus Station)
The Hayloft	Silver Slipper

Other:

Yellowjacket Club (at the Navy Annex, by Pentagon), NCO Club: cheap drinks, and great bands. Had to know someone in Navy to go with.

There were a number of "drinking bars" on 9th Street. All Nameless

Market Inn

Post Pub

Round Robin Bar (Willard Hotel)

Blackies

Good Guys, Camelot, Louis the Rogue (strip bars)
